German Sub Heading for Japan Caught

Portsmouth, N. H., July 3 (UP)—Discovery of a $5,000,000 cache of mercury and other valuable cargo aboard a captured Nazi U-boat that apparently was seeking to flee to Japan, was disclosed by a Navy spokesman here today. The cargo was hidden aboard the U-234, a 1,200-ton submarine aboard which two Japanese officials committed hara-kiri shortly before the vessel was captured in the North Atlantic in April.

So effectively was the mercury hidden in minuscule ampoules that it was not found until the submarine had been put in drydock and the keel plates removed. Some of the flask of the mineral were 12 inches long and 18 inches. The smaller ones weighed about 80 pounds each.

According to the naval spokesman, the mercury had been used by the submarine as ballast. Officials were unable to say

It was said the mercury and other cargo had been taken to Washington under a heavy Marine and Seabee guard.

Soldier Who Wouldn't Die Stirs World

Port Worth, July 9 (UP)—Cpl. Jim Newman's valiant fight against a 1,000-to-1 chance to live entered its second miraculous week today as the emaciated 25-year-old Texan confidently held his own in a Japanese prison camp on Bataan.

Three years in a Japanese prison camp, beriberi, tuberculosis, malnutrition, dysentery and Army medical statistics still challenged Jim's hope of a future.

Yet ever since Jim was flown home from a Santa Fe, N. M., Army hospital seven days ago to die in his own room, the corporal and his family have been "willing" him away from the door.

Ever mindful of his biggest battle, Jim rests on a specially-prepared hospital bed. His mother and brothers were certain his cheeks were pinkening again.

Doctors gave him only two days to live after he got home. Jim is five days past that deadline—and going right on living.

Port Worth, Tex., July 7.—(UP)—The corporal whom army doctors last Monday sent home to die, 25-year-old handsome Jim Newman, just grinned right back at the doctors this week-end and kept right on living.

Because of his smiles in the face of what medical men have said to be certain death, young Newman has been made a national hero, and his little room in a white cottage on the outskirts of Port Worth is stacked with telegrams and letters of encouragement and all descriptions of gifts. Even Texas Gov. Coke R. Stevenson wired Cpl. Newman that his exhibition of courage and spirit was making "all of us feel that this war is not being fought in vain."

More recently Jim has been bothered with a bad case of laryngitis, and doctors have forbidden him to talk. He could only grin and nod his head when interviewed by United Press correspondent, but that winning, never-say-die smile from his dark, handsome face showed clearly why he had been named the "chin-up boy."

The frail 92-pound corporal contracted beriberi, tuberculosis and suffers from malnutrition as the result of his three years spent in a Japanese prison camp on Bataan. Earlier this week when doctors permitted Jim to talk, the corporal said he couldn't understand why everyone was making such a "fuss" over him. And should doctors feel in a few days that corporal Jim has regained strength enough to talk once more, he'll probably burst out with more of what he told his mother before they left him. "Don't you worry mom; I'm okay and I'm going to get well."

Heavy-set, motherly Mrs. Newman certainly agrees with her son.

In the early days, crude oil was carried in barrels by horse and wagon.

DOROTHY DIX

Unwise Tyrannical Parents

Times Have Changed and Grown Children Have Some Rights

Dear Miss Dix: I am a boy of 17 and will soon go into the army. I have been working for three years. I have begun to dislike my parents because of the unjust way they treat me until now I can't stand them any longer. I have never been out with a girl because they have forbidden it, and because I can't afford it, for while I make good money, they take it all on which I have to buy my lunches away from me except $5 a week and my clothes and pay carfare.

In the office in which I work they are very strict about what we wear and many a time I go hungry so I can get a pair of pants, or shoes, or something. I have asked my parents for more money, but they reply that when they were young they had to make a quarter last them a week, and they don't see why I can't get along with $5. All I want is a little fun and to go out with girls like other boys of my age do. What shall I do?

LONELY AND TIRED NEED EDUCATION

ANSWER: I often think that it is not the young who need to be educated so much as the parents who need to be brought up-to-date and taught that they cannot deal with their children the way their parents dealt with them. So many fathers and mothers fail to understand that the whole world has changed since they were boys and girls, and that there is a new order, and that if they don't adjust themselves to lose all influence with their children, but they are going to lose the children themselves, who will leave them as soon as they possibly can.

This boy, for instance, and he stands for thousands of others who are in his position, is going to lose the children themselves, who will leave them as soon as they possibly can.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband and I have been happily married for three years and have two beautiful children, but lately somebody has sold him the idea that husbands should cheat on their wives. He says he will never really love anybody but the children and me, but that they tell him it keeps him young and happy and he is not tied down to his home. Do you think that is true?

OLD-FASHIONED WIFE

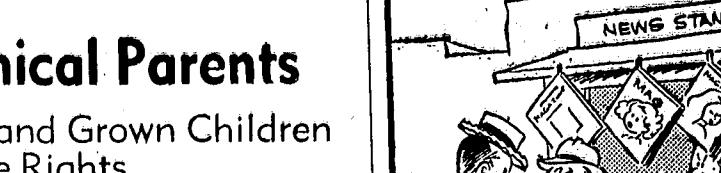

ANSWER: I think the theory that keep the divorce courts running overtime. The whole consensus of human experience is that home-keeping hearts are happier, and that the successful marriages are those in which the husband and wife are faithful to each other. Not only are the men happier who have one wife and cleave unto her, but they are the most prosperous. The minutes a man begins running around after strange women, his heart is broken, and he loses the respect of all who know him. He finds that loose-living women are gold-diggers, and that the price of immorality comes high.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am in love with a beautiful girl and was about to propose to her, but she very suddenly changed her mind when I brought her to my home to meet my people she got into a violent argument with my parents, and now they are opposed to my marrying her. I am very much attached to my father and mother and I feel that I owe them an unpayable debt. I am very much attached to my father and mother and I feel that I owe them an unpayable debt. I am very much attached to my father and mother and I feel that I owe them an unpayable debt.

G.M.O. 'S

ANSWER: Well, if I were a young man I would take the turn that led away from the altar if the girl were legitimate and strong-willed and didn't have enough tact to know how to get along with other people. I would be awfully leary of a strong-willed girl. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

you can pity both the parents and the boy, because both are losing the love that should exist between fathers and mothers and children and that is the most precious thing in the world.

It is, of course, right that parents should establish authority over their children but they should use it with discretion and give their children all permissible innocent liberty. Yet hundreds of letters come to this column from nearly grown boys and girls telling that they are not allowed to have dates, or to have company at home, or to go to dances or have any of the diversions that the other boys and girls of their age are having.

It is also right that parents should teach their children thrift but they should not take all of the money a boy or girl earns and only dole him or her out a small pittance. Rather the child should be taught how to handle his money. The laborer is worthy of his hire, and any boy or girl who has sense enough to hold down a job and earn money sensibly has sense enough to know how to use it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband and I have been happily married for three years and have two beautiful children, but lately somebody has sold him the idea that husbands should cheat on their wives. He says he will never really love anybody but the children and me, but that they tell him it keeps him young and happy and he is not tied down to his home. Do you think that is true?

Flashes of Life

CUPID THE WINNAH

Wahalla, S. C., July 9.—(AP)—A little matter of a 24-hour wait wouldn't deter a tall, lanky Oklahoma and a pretty blonde from Washington, Ga., when they came over to O'nease County to be married.

Expecting to be wed on their arrival, the couple, Adams, 35, and Alice Ramey, 19, ran into the state's 24-hour wait law which went into effect July 1. So they stayed in the hotel where they were at the court house for the required time until the deputy probate Judge Isobel Turnbell tied the knot.

MIRTH AND TAXES

Kansas City, Mo., July 9.—(AP)—"As funny as a delinquent tax notice," said a man who was laughing at a silly simile? Not to Corporal Alvin C. Clutz, a former Kansas City man stationed with the U.S. Army.

Clutz, in reply to a tax attorney's delinquent notice, notifying to appear in person to make payment of a $12.00 delinquent tax, wrote the moral of the outfit at least 50 percent. He added: "I was very happy to receive it. We don't find much humor here."

The attorney liked Clutz's sense of humor. In another note, he told the corporal to ignore the notice and to pay the tax. That was his moral needed a boost, and there would be a box of candy or cigars headed Guam-ward.

ALLEGIC TO "MR"

Kansas City, Mo., July 9.—(AP)—John Kenneth Smith, who was discharged from the army recently, was told by a local radio station to get a set of bell-bottom trousers by enlisting in the Navy. Smith, 25-year-old father of two children, was first crack at the axis as a machine gunner with the First Army in France Annam.

'Infant Care' Sells Million Copies a Year

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—When more than 17,000,000 copies of a booklet have been distributed in 30 years, and it has reached a circulation of more than a million a year, that's a publication news that needs some digging into.

The booklet is 'Infant Care', first published in 1914. It has been revised and brought up to date three times; the latest printing is just off the presses. Millions of mothers who were "brought up by the book" are now bringing up their children by it. The Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, which publishes the booklet, calls its popularity "a little on the side of the phenomenal, with results incalculable."

The booklet caught on almost from the first. Public health officers and doctors distribute it; department stores give it away with baby goods; mothers buy it in great numbers. Congressmen have mailed out copies by the hundreds and mail order demands roll in by the thousands.

Veterans of the Children's Bureau recall that when 'Infant Care' was first published, it was considered a radical idea. At that time, the booklet was scorned. That the government should try to tell parents how to feed and rear their infants was considered at best an encroachment on a professional field.

However, Julia Gathrop, first chief of the Children's Bureau, was a vigorous crusader. The object then, as now, was to bring out a simple, inexpensive work on the subject of baby care. Most of all, no effort was to be spared to make it authoritative. Staff pediatricians wrote it, but it was reviewed by outstanding pediatricians, nutritionists and child psychologists before it ever goes to press.

It was almost completely rewritten in 1929, 1938 and 1942. There are only a few modifications of the last edition in the one now rolling off the press.

Some of the ideas in the first version now make amusing reading, so completely have ideas changed. The booklet measures by-the-clock feedings, bedtime schedules and clothing all have changed considerably since mothers have been told to "follow the baby's lead." Baby's dresses and petticoats "no longer than 10 inches below the feet" now seem as old-fashioned as a bull.

Since these "radical ideas" were first drummed out in the government pamphlet, the number of babies who die in the first year of life has dropped from ten to four in each hundred. The Children's Bureau justifiably claims that it has contributed some $100,000,000. (Single copies of 'Infant Care' may be had free from the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. They may be had at 10 cents, with a reduction in price on bulk orders, from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Please do NOT send orders to this newspaper.)

50% of Industrial Alcohol Allocated for Beverage Use

Washington, July 6.—(UP)—The War Production Board said today that industrial alcohol producers may put 50 per cent of the production into beverage alcohol during July liquor holiday.

As originally announced, production of beverage alcohol was to have been 30 per cent. Distilleries which converted to industrial alcohol production for war will devote 100 per cent of production to beverage purposes during the holiday as was originally planned.

Holmes Holds All Majors' Bat Honors

By CORNELIUS RYAN

New York, July 7. (UP)—Tommy Holmes of the Boston Braves moved into a virtual monopoly of major league batting honors during the week, leading in batting percentage, hits, runs, and doubles.

Through Friday's games, the 27-year-old Brooklyn right fielder was hitting .407 on 128 hits in 300 times at bat in 71 games.

He had 144 hits, 47 runs, and made 24 home runs. He had 13 doubles, 10 triples, and 10 home runs.

He was 40 percentage points ahead of second-place Phil Cavarretta of the Chicago Cubs and 71 points ahead of third-place Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

The Braves' victory was the 14th in a row, and it was the 14th in a row that Holmes had won in his last 14 games.
